HIV Scotland is the HIV charity of Scotland. We're an involvement organisation at heart, amplifying the voices and experiences of people living with and affected by HIV to affect change through policy, research, campaigning and advocacy. Our vision is for Scotland eliminate new transmissions of HIV – and to do that we need to end HIV-related deaths and HIV-related stigma. Did you know that someone living with HIV, on medication that works so effectively it reduces the level of HIV to such levels it becomes undetectable, can't pass it on to their sexual partners? Undetectable = Untransmittable

The Breastfeeding Network supports women, families and communities with evidence-based information and practical peer support to give children the best start in life. Our vision is that women are supported in their infant feeding choices and that they are able to breastfeed for as long as they choose. Central to our work is promoting the mental and physical wellbeing of mothers and babies and encouraging families to access help when needed. We increase community knowledge of breastfeeding to help remove barriers and build understanding of its importance. We meet these aims by listening to families, respecting and supporting their choices.

The National Breastfeeding Helpline is open 9.30am-9.30pm every single day of the year on 0300 100 0212. All calls are answered by volunteers in their own homes, all are mums who have breastfed and are trained and supported by The Breastfeeding Network and the Association of Breastfeeding Mothers. We offer friendly, non judgemental, evidence based, confidential breastfeeding information and support to anyone who needs it. We also provide support via webchat and social media message via Facebook. The National Breastfeeding Helpline is funded by Public Health England and the Scottish Government.

We are an executive agency of the Scottish Government. We were established in September 2018. Our headquarters are in Dundee, we have a second main site in Glasgow, and we will have people providing face-to-face support based in communities across every local authority area in Scotland. We are a new and growing public service. We will employ more than 1900 people once we are fully up and running. We are led by our Chief Executive and the Deputy Directors who form our Executive Team. Our Chief Executive is supported by an Executive Advisory Body and our Audit and Assurance Committee.

The Scottish Library and Information Council (SLIC), established in 1991, is the independent advisory body to the Scottish Government on library and information related matters.

Our greatest strength is our membership. Members are drawn from the public sector, school libraries, higher education institutions, further education colleges, health libraries and special interest libraries. Each of our member institutions bring expertise, knowledge and innovation to the library sector. By working together, that expertise is shared through SLIC.
